

Naviance is a computer program used by many high schools and colleges to assist with the college application process. BHS uses Naviance for a number of purposes, including helping to research college options, and sending BHS materials to colleges. Naviance also has tools to help students explore their learning style, possible careers and college majors.

In order for BHS to send materials to colleges, students must register with Naviance. When the time comes to apply, students enter the names of all of their colleges into the section called “Colleges I’m Applying To.” Most importantly, students must sign the FERPA (Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act) on Naviance to authorize BHS to send materials to colleges. Finally, when students hear back from the colleges, they must enter the results into Naviance. This information, viewed anonymously, helps future BHS students explore their prospects for admissions at these colleges.

Naviance is designed for parents and students to work together during the college application process. Parents are encouraged to work with their son/daughter, using the student’s account and password. Additionally, parents can explore Naviance as a guest, logging in with the password “bhs” (case sensitive).

To register for Naviance:

- You must have a registration code. If you don’t have yours, you can get it from a BHS Guidance Counselor working with seniors.
- Go to: connection.naviance.com/brookline.
- Click “I need to register.”
- Follow the prompts.

To log in to Naviance go to:
